LITTLE GIRL TO HAVE MOTHER AFTER 6 YRS.

Neglected at Salem Hospital by Real Parents, Supervisor Will Adopt Her

Six years is a long time for a little girl to wait for her father and mother—especially when she is only six.

But little Gladys Foye, whose only home since birth has been the Veterans Hospital in Salem, will have to wait any longer for a mother. Miss Gladys Foye, supervisor of the hospital, is going to be the little Gladys' legal mother, after finding that child during the past six years.

Adoption papers will be taken out by the supervisor, she declared today. Both she and Gladys have tried to recover nothing but an occasional telephone call from Gladys' father and mother, who left their baby at the hospital when she was born.

Always the father, Leo Foye of Cambridge, over the phone, has insisted that he will be down to Salem shortly to take his baby girl. But since of these promises has been fulfilled, Little Gladys does not know what her father and mother look like. She has never set eyes on them, although they have sent presents each Christmas.

Up to mid-summer of 1922 Gladys board was paid regularly. Since last telephone call came last March and Little Gladys was again all expected. But now both she and the supervisor have waited and Miss Foye is going to be Gladys' mama.

BODY OF BABY FOUND HIDDEN IN CELLAR

Wrapped in Tattered Cloth Under Pile of Boards at Somerville House

The body of a five-month-old boy was found under a pile of boards in the cellar of the house at Nos. 62-64 Temple street, Somerville, by Victor L. La Sore, one of the occupants, and John Barrett, caretaker, of No. 52 Jacques street, Boston.

All clothing had been removed from the body and it was wrapped in a tattered fragment of gray cloth, such as might have made up part of a woman's wrapper.

The police were notified and the body was turned over to Undertaker Frank E. Flaherty for examination by Medical Examiner Durrell.

According to the police, the child had been dead for several weeks.

Medical Examiner Durrell reported nothing could be told as to the cause or manner of death. He ordered the doctor Flaherty to bury the body.

Bedtime Story Reveals Strange Nightmare of Runaway R.I. Senators

Not so long ago, dear two-footed friends—oh, yes, this is a bedtime story—naughty Republicans boys and some naughty Democratic boys down in dear little Rhode Island, snatched each other rudely for many consecutive weeks.

The Republican boys, dear children, not being as good snackers as their Democratic playmates, ran away, but being fat they could not run far without tripping easily, as they only ran as far as Rutland, which, you know, is in our own lovely State of Massachusetts.

Now, as you have been taught, my youthful listeners, he who doeth wrong liveth in repentance. That is in the good book. It must be so in little Rhode Island's good book, because no senator had the kindness to dance exclusively in the ballroom of the Hotel, than they began to tremble with tremendous trembles.

THE EXODUS

"They will kidnap me," they cried, and hid their cute little heads in terror beneath the sheets of the beds they had made for themselves and on which they were lying.

"They will kidnap me," they cried, and hid their cute little heads in terror beneath the sheets of the beds they had made for themselves and on which they were lying.

And then, my listeners—what do you think? The strangest thing happened. Down the road came a cloud of dust, and when the magic cloud reached the hill it filtered away into the air and where the cloud had appeared were two wonderful knights, all dressed in olive green uniforms with big red bows hanging in holsters at their belts.

"We will save you! We will save you!" cried one of the brave knights cheerily to the frightened Republicans.

"We will save you!" echoed his brave companion. "And while we are saving and guarding you from harm, we will play croquet."

So the brave Constabulary Knights furnished by our dear Republican State, jumped from their resplendent steeds and began to play croquet, while the frightened little Republican Senators lost their fright and they too began to romp on the lawn with heavy rollers and law-mowers and croquet mallets.

Meanwhile, throughout our dear State, my two-footed listeners, young and energetic reporters were trying to find out who had sent the brave knights and who was paying for protecting the frightened Senators.

But, strangely enough, dear children, nobody seemed to know who had sent them—even their own head knight, or boss. And mystery spread throughout the State.

But one of the Republican Senators, it must be said, my hearers, told with pride that he had gone to the Governor, Channing Woodbury, who, dear listeners, is a Republican. He should have pride. Dartmouth is a wonderful institution—situated on a beautiful spot.

WE WILL SAVE YOU!

In the hills under the great open spaces where men are real guys and the boys are clubby.

"Who sent the brave knights to rescue the frightened little Republican Senators?" it is asked, dear listeners.

"Not I," said half-cocked Robin from the waving vine tops above.

"Who sent the brave knights?" asked a young and energetic reporter.

"Not I," said Colonel B. J. Norton, who is acting head of the troopers in the absence of General Alfred Foye.

"Who sent the brave knights, etc., etc." asked another reporter who is a little older but just as energetic.

"Not I," said Lieutenant Kimball, in charge of the constabulary camp at Faxon, where there are many more brave boys. There are so many you see, my two-footed friends. The brave knights must have heard the pathetic prayers of the frightened little Republicans and dashed up to the hotel themselves.

But somebody else must have heard these fearful prayers, my delicious children, for "Skip" Sherlock and "Si" Smith, brave State sleuths, came galloping up to the hotel soon after their size eleven.

"Fee fi fo d'ee!" growled the giant "Skip" in his inimitable police way. "I smell the lawland of a Duffin."

"Fee fi fo d'ee!" Perhaps you've only got a cold," chimed in "Si" Smith, not to be outdone by his brother trail-smeller.

STATE SLEUTHS DO THEIR STUFF

Then the two fearless detectives got painfully down on their hands and knees to look for Democratic footprints in the grass, soaked by the perspiration and dripping ice cream cones of the frightened Republicans.

But the frightened Republicans should have fear, dear two-footed friends, for just after daybreak a young couple, bearing a Rhode Island license plate, was seen near the hotel, while the Senators, worn out from a day of hard play, were taking forty winks in their tiny beds—and then some.

The little couple was supposed to contain Democratic energy, thirsting for the blood of Republican Senators and eager to steal some things, brooks and nodding daisies and all manner of other trifling things. The Republican Senators should have been frightened, for dear children, a lot of Republican Senators can be squeezed into a little coupe built for two and already containing three.

But the frightened Republicans, when they heard of it, were reassured, however, dear listeners, for one of the brave trooper knights spat out tobacco juice and said proudly:

"Don't be nervous, Senators. If those guys start anything, they'll be bumped off."

And with this, dear listeners, we will conclude today's bedtime story that you may look at the comic section and hustle off to bed.

But before you go, dear children, remember, the moral of this story:

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try Massachusetts."

DR. WARREN, HOSPITAL FOUNDER, DEAD AT 78

KIDNAPERS? NO! ONLY THIEF; R.I. SOLDIERS SAFE

Fugitive Senators Routed Out of Rutland When Bandit Rides Garage in Rutland

Rutland, June 27.—The Old Bartlett House, chief and only hostelry in this—perhaps—community, was wrung in shivers.

In the East, a brightening of the sky afforded evidence that the long night was over and day was about well done.

On the road outside the hotel two weary State troopers yawned and stretched, thankful that their all-night vigil was nearly over.

Inside the hotel, however, 21 Republican Senators from Rhode Island, in whose behalf the vigilance of the troopers was exercised.

Two State detectives also slept the sleep of tired men whose consciences do not trouble them.

Shortly a rifle appeared down the road. The guards reported that all was well in Rutland, and hastened to their banks conscious of a well done.

Then it happened. The will of the troopers was met by an armed car. A man ran down the street, shouting incoherently. Heads were thrust out of windows. Voices demanded to be told where the fire was.

The stalwart troopers, visions of a confederation in their minds, rushed to the scene.

"What's the matter?" they inquired.

"I've been robbed," he wailed.

"Impossible," the troopers rejoined indignantly.

It was only too true, however. While the visiting Rhode Island Senators, who were escorted by troopers and detectives, the local garage was entered by a "prover" and robbed of two hundred dollars.

RUMANS DENY PLAN TO TAKE U. S. OIL LAND

Bucharest, June 27.—Replying to the American voice of protest, the Rumanian Foreign Office states that the projected mining law does not contemplate confiscation of American oil properties in Rumania or interference with the legitimate rights of American capital.

It is understood that modifications are being introduced in the American interests and that the legislation is preparing a third protest.

HOODED BAND HECKLES WALTON

Heaven, Okla., June 27.—A political speech by J. C. Walton, former Governor of Oklahoma, was delayed half an hour while several hooded men made a series of speeches about the platform hoisting and jostling.

"We'll have no Jack in the Senate," declared one of the speakers.

Walton, a candidate for United States Senator.

Raleigh Crashes His Way to Food With Brick Shower

Washington, twenty-seven, a deflated gentleman who hails from No. 1711 Twenty-fourth street northwest, Washington, took a short cut to food and shelter today by tossing bricks through several windows along Washington street in the South End.

Washington was taken into custody by a squad of plain clothes men from the East Dedham station, including Redding, E. Kelley, McCloskey and Hixon.

They say that he admits all the breaks, which number four, and that he is in the urgent need for food and room rent. The bricks were wrapped neatly in newspapers.

Rather, it converges on the steam line, with the grade crossing at the crest of a low hill, in full view. Thus Vire was driving with the train that crashed into his sedan and killed his two companions.

SEEK TAY AGAINST LACONIA DIVIDEND

Alleging that directors of the Lacomia Car Company have devised a plan to benefit the common stockholders of the company at the expense of the holders of preferred stock, the Lacomia Car Company has filed a bill in equity in Superior Court to join the directors from paying a $2.50 per share dividend on the preferred stock.

The petitioners maintain that accumulated dividends of $75 on each share of preferred stock remain unpaid and that they are entitled to be paid before the new $2.50 dividend. It is alleged that, in the three years ending January 1 of this year, the company earned an amount sufficient to pay accumulated dividends.

ITALIAN JOE DEMPSEY PUGILIST, MURDERED

New York, June 27.—Joseph J. Carra, a prize-fighter known as "Italian Joe Dempsey," was shot dead on a street in Brooklyn early today. Philip Connor of Brooklyn, was arrested on a charge of homicide.

The shooting, according to the police, followed an altercation which arose after La Carra, Connor and several other men had returned from a boxing bout at the Yankee Stadium.

Miss Hutton and her four male companions are being arraigned today for the charge of first degree murder.

Find Missing Man's Body

Providence, June 27.—The body of Morris Seymour, thirty, of Fall River, who disappeared from the steamer Sagamore here last Sunday, was found floating in the Providence River today. Death was due to accident.

SHAW DEFENDED BEAUTY TO AVOID BEING 'CAD'

'BUTTERFLY' SAVED ENGAGEMENT RING

New York, June 27.—"Would Mr. Shaw have been branded as a cad if in his reply to his wife's charges linking his name with that of Miss Labarre he had admitted that this young woman was his affianced wife?" cried Herbert C. Smyth, counsel to Philip M. Shaw, wealthy broker, at the trial today of the $100,000 breach of promise action of Miss Madeline Dever, formerly of Somerville, Mass., against him.

Miss Dever, when a Pollux beauty, understanding Marilyn Miller, was known under her stage name of Madeline Labarre.

During the trial of her sensational action, which has thronged Supreme Court, Justice Leonard A. Clegg's courtroom every day this week, both she and her mother have been referred to more often by the name Labarre than by her own family name of Dever.

Attorney Smith's caustic retort was provoked by the grilling cross-examination of Broker Shaw conducted by Miss Dever's counsel, Morse Sable Hirsch.

Mr. Hirsch obtained from Shaw the admission that he told only part of the truth when he said in his reply to his wife's divorce complaint that when Mrs. Labarre and her daughter came to New York early in 1919 and stayed at the Hotel Woodward they came here to look over several prospects for theatrical engagements for Madeline.

Then the lawyer aroused Shaw's wrath by intimating in his questions that the broker had stated part truth and part falsehood in his reply to his wife's suit.

"I stated nothing that was false," snapped Shaw. "Even if what I mean that her attitude of unfriendliness to me at that time and turning my presents was wrong.

At another point in his cross-examination Attorney Hirsch caused a general cringing of necks among courtroom spectators when he began quizzing Broker Shaw as to whether he promised Miss Labarre to buy her another ring when he learned that she no longer had the one he had given her.

"Madeline said she had pawned or sold the ring, I forgot which," said Shaw.

"On that occasion did she discuss with you the fact that you were married?" queried Attorney Hirsch.

"Certainly we discussed the divorce case," said the broker.

Q.—And did you then tell her that it was not true, that you could prove it to her?

Q.—But you said that in the letter, didn't you? A.—Said what?

Q.—That she was wrong in saying you were married? A.—No, I said that she was wrong and I

JAIL DELIVERY PLOT SAID TO LEOPOLD

Franks Slayer Accused of Directing the Scheme to Free Prisoners in Chicago

Chicago, June 27 (U.S.A.)—Seven young prisoners, convicted as holdup men, were sent from the county jail here today to the prison at Pontiac and visitors were limited and closely watched following disclosure, according to a guard, of a plot to liberate by wholesale Cook County prisoners, including Nathan F. Leopold Jr., who is said to have supplied the brains for the plot.

Abraham Lieberman, forty-three, of No. 31 Warren avenue, Miami, a customer, was found with the butt end of a revolver and knocked unconscious during a fireman holdup of a slaughter house at Suffolk square, Malden, owned by Elias Suss. The five masked gunmen were frightened off by the arrival of Meyer E. Devansky, twenty-four, of No. 3 Holmes street, Malden, an agent. Beransky took Lieberman to the office of Dr. Joseph Newman of Key street, where five stitches were taken in his scalp.

On his way to the doctor's office Beransky notified Postoffice A. G. Cronin, stationed at Suffolk square, of the robbery. Cronin learned that Suss had been robbed of $14.90, but was unable to pick up the trail of the bandits.

Lieberman was in the shop with the proprietor and his three assistants when the masked gang, led by a woman man, commanded them to stick their hands in their pockets to obey and received a knife-cut blow on the head.

LOWELL COP SHOT, SPECIAL OFFICER HELD

Lawrence, June 27.—Special Police Officer Timothy Lynch of No. 216 Saratoga street, this city, is under arrest and the police are seeking two Lowell business men, all in connection with the shooting of Police Officer Lynch in Lowell in an alleged brawl in front of Lynch's home.

Chowney is at the General Hospital with a bullet wound in his right shoulder, but it is said he will recover.

The charge against Lynch alleges assault with a dangerous weapon, common assault and to talk when he was brought to the hospital by two men, who left immediately without identifying themselves or making any explanations.

Cowney gave to hospital authorities the name of Francis Jennings of No. 24 Warwick street, Lawrence, identified by SUPERIOR.

Two patrolmen assigned to guard his car, Joseph Jordan and Michael Murphy, guessed he was a Lowell officer and notified the authorities. Lieutenant Francis of Lowell came and identified him.

To his superior officer, Cowney said he had been walking along East Prospect street when he was shot by two men, who fled.

Acting on a tip, Patrolmen Francis P. Devlin and Nicholas Fortine visited the Lynch home shortly after the shooting and found Lynch in bed. He denied knowledge of any quarrel at his home, which might have led to the shooting.

DAUGHTER HEARD SHOES.

Lynch's daughter, however, they say, told them that a party of men under the influence of liquor had come to the house early in the evening. Some time after 11 o'clock, according to the same story, she heard loud talk outside, culminating in five or six shots.

Police later made a second search of the Lynch home, finding both the front and back doors open and no one in the house, except a man in a common state, who could not be aroused.

Hospital authorities took the number of the car which brought Cowney there for treatment. The license number, D-139-A, is registered in the name of the Essex-Buick Company of South Portland.

Captain Joseph H. Mulholland of the local police has wired Pittsfield an appeal to learn if the Pittsfield man had been in the city.

DRIVER WHO HIT CHILDREN IS JAILED

Ernest Whitaker, forty-five, of Robert street, Roxbury, whose automobile ploughed through a group of children playing in a sidewalk at West Dedham street and Shawmut avenue, June 18, appeared before Judge David H. Mansfield today and agreed to take a sentence of one month in jail on the charge of operating an auto while under the influence of liquor.

After a conference with Whitaker's attorney, Bernard Carlin, a judge ordered sent out that defendant had stayed eight days in jail, when he will be released.

Ernest Whitaker, trends advised him, Judge David agreed to the fine for other charges of drunkenness.

The accident created considerable stir in the vicinity of West Dedham street and Shawmut avenue at the time, a squad of police being required to remove the injured children, most of whom had to be treated.

125,000-ACRE FOREST BURNED IN WEST

San Francisco, June 27.—Four forest areas in California are burning out of control. The largest is in Santa Clara County, 77 miles from San Francisco, where flames which have destroyed 125,000 acres of forest ground laid, as being blown eastward into Stanislaus County and toward the rich farming land of the San Joaquin Valley.

In the timbered mountains of Sierra and Plumas Counties, close to Nevada, two more blazes are pouring forth the effects of control lines. More than 1,000 acres had been burned in Sierra County and the flames were still spreading at the last report.

NEED PROTECTION IN AIR, SAYS MAUGHAN

San Francisco, June 27.—The only modern airplane suitable for air combat now on the Pacific coast is that in which Lieutenant Harold G. Maughan made his 24-hour transcontinental flight last Monday, according to a statement by him.

"A 120-mile-an-hour plane is at the mercy of one which can fly at 190 miles an hour," said Lieutenant Maughan. "The air across the continent was made to awaken the people to the fact that their country is very, very small and that it is badly in need of protection in the sky."

ARGUMENTS IN COAKLEY CASE ARE OPENED

Indications Are Fate of Defendant Will Reach Hands of the Jury Monday

Final arguments in the trial of Daniel H. Coakley and William J. Govorn, on charges of conspiracy, were begun today in East Cambridge Superior Court.

Rebuttal evidence by the Government was completed prior to the usual noon recess and the jury was sequestered until 2 o'clock when John H. Weeks, counsel for Coakley, began his argument. The defense offered no rebuttal.

The argument of John P. Feeney for Coakley was to follow that of Attorney Weeks and then District Attorney Reading had his chance to sum up. It is expected that the case will go to the jury on Monday.

Harry J. Levenson was one of the last witnesses to appear in the rebuttal.

Levenson testified today in his rebuttal testimony that Walter A. Mayberry and Walter P. Lewis, both of whom acted as his counsel following his conviction and sentence in the Loring case.

Levenson denied that he ever told Mayberry that Simon Reig would not be tried on his indictment, and that he got this information in the Middlesex District Attorney's office. He also denied telling Lewis that "the office across the river" had promised to take care of Levenson's case.

When asked for his version of the Lewis interview in Boston square, witness said he told Lewis he had been promised a copy of the brief in his case by Mayberry. Levenson wanted to know if it was ready, he said, and asked Lewis if his (Levenson's) action in turning State's evidence, had affected the attitude of Mayberry's office in handling his case. He was told, he said, that it had not.

CONTRADICTS TESTIMONY. Witness further testified that he mentioned to Lewis that he knew of a friendship existing between Mayberry's office and Coakley some years ago.

"I asked Lewis whether he had prepared a motion for a new trial. He said he thought it was too late. I told him I didn't think so; that I didn't think the district attorney's office would oppose a motion for a new trial because of delay."

Q.—By District Attorney Reading: Did you ever say to Mr. Lewis or to Mayberry that District would cooperate in having a motion for a new trial allowed? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever say to either Mayberry or Lewis that the office across the river would take care of you in the Loring case? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever tell Mayberry that Simon Reig's case would not be tried? A.—No.

Alice, who was asleep in the dining room, was awakened by smoke and the crackling of flames. She aroused the household and then rescued her brother and sister.

Damage to the building and contents is set at $2,500.

The making of bread is a noble business

Our founder, Robert Boyd Ward, looked upon the making of bread—the staff of life—as a solemn responsibility. Felt it was up to him and up to everyone else in the baking business to try to measure up to that responsibility.

We must have bread to live—it is the staff of life. It must be good nourishing bread. It must be good to the taste, so that it can be eaten with enjoyment—three times a day. That's why every baker should strive constantly to make better and better bread. And that's why you should insist upon quality in bread when you buy it.
